

Supernatural Belief: Me or Memes?

Bruce Hood
University of Bristol Department of Experimental Psychology

*Where do we get our supernatural beliefs from?
Are we simply just gullible meme-machines, or is there some intrinsic origin for the unbelievable?*

The brains of even young babies not only organize sensory information but supply what is missing, determine cause and effect, and use the information to generate theories about how the world operates. Such natural intuitive reasoning may persist as we become adults.

Monday, March 15, 2010
Science I, Room 149, 5:00 PM

Spring 2010 EvoS Seminar Series evolution.binghamton.edu/hood