

Evolved Sex Differences and the Law of Sex Discrimination: A Conversation

Julie A. Seaman
Emory University School of Law

“The findings of evolutionary science may offer some guidance through the thickets of sex and gender, sameness and difference, invidious and benign discrimination as confronted by legislators, courts, and legal scholars.”

“The Peahen's Tale, or Dressing Our Parts at Work.” Julie A. Seaman. Duke Journal of Gender Law & Policy. Volume 14:423. 2007.

Monday, November 1, 2010
5:00 PM in Lecture Hall 2

Fall 2010 EvoS Seminar Series
evolution.binghamton.edu/seaman